Port Huron, Michigan 48060

Enrollment : 1377

You wish you were.....

You may wish that you were a doctor, fireman, professional athlete, or a teacher. Each of us at Port Huron Northern High School carries aspirations of what they want to accomplish in their lives. The students have been involved in sports and student activities. They have shown their school spirit and have, in doing so, started on a path that will springboard them towards their future.

In many ways the end of High School is similar to the end of your favorite chapter in a book. It answers many questions, but a good writer leaves more to be desired. In many ways this is what we are moving towards; we are exploring these yet to be answered questions of life. What lies around the corner for the young men and women leaving this year? Only they can decide. For those sticking around, cherish your time here, because you don't realize what you really have until it's gone.

While we all shared time in class, did homework, and hung out with friends, it is our wishes and our dreams that makes each of us unique. In the end it will be our wishes, desires, and ideas that will carry each and everyone of us along our individual paths in a multitude of different directions.

So, as you reminisce about the events of this year, look to the future and say to yourself...

"I wish I was a_____."

You hear the final bell, on the final hour, of the final day, and you know summer is here! For most people summer is a time for hanging out with friends, sleeping in, and being far away from school. It can give the opportunity for people to do things they normally don't have the time to do. When asked of her favorite memory, junior Hanna Johnston says, "Over the summer I was a Junior Counselor at a childrens camp. It was a great experience because I love working with kids, and they all were amazing!" Summer time is our three months of heaven, our time to soak up the sun, and recharge for next year!

There was a time. When a picture could be taken without fear, without hesitation. These times have long since passed.

Today, the threat of photo-bombers looms over all those who carry a camera. They look no different from you or me but their behavior is something most normal people cannot comprehend and by the time you know who they are, it is already too late. To these people nothing is sacred, even your memories are at risk. So the next time you snap a quick pic of your friends or a family photo remember, they live among us.

The WORLD is OURS...

You made it! After all this time you have finally arrived! As you walk through the doors of Northern as a senior you realize that your time here is limited. You glance around at the fresh young faces that dwell beneath you and reminisce on the days when you were once considered one of "those kids." Not long ago, it was you who wandered the halls without a clue as to where you needed to go, and it was you who glared tentatively upwards towards those grizzled veterans of high school. Today, however, you are "these people," those who looked so old to you just 3 short years ago. The people you feared; the people you looked up to, both physically and figuratively. This is what you have become; what you had hoped to be all those years, and now, it will be gone before you're even settled in.

2012 Class President Jack Thompson

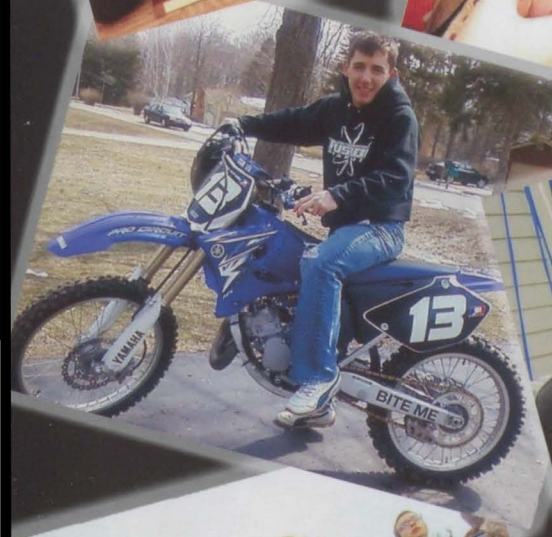

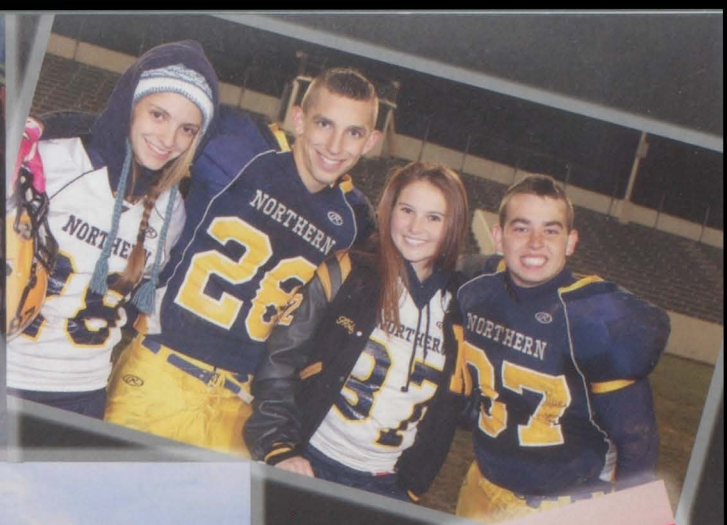

"Everyone always says High School goes by so fast. We may believe this from time to time but if you really think about it, you may be incorrect. If you look back at all the events from the first day of freshman year to graduation day, there were so many experiences that we will keep for the rest of our lives. Through all the dances, football games, assemblies, and conversations with friends; everyone can think about all the vast things that they have been involved in at this school. From having the best school dance of your life, to sitting in a boring classroom and just waiting for 2:20 to roll around, there are so many things that have happened we can't even begin to think of it all. We have grown closer to the people who we are surrounded by everyday, including our teachers, coaches, administrators, and most importantly our friends. The best memories will always be the ones that we have spent with our friends. We have all found a way to survive and enjoy our four years here and a strong part of that are the relationships we have made with the people around us. Don't let these relationships stop moving you forward in your life. Keep your friends by your side, and at the same time, be a friend for the students of our class. On top of that, bring along what you have learned from our school. The information we've gained and the life lessons we have learned will propel us through life and help us become the people we want to be.

So we've experienced it all, hopefully we've all gotten everything out of Northern that we possibly could. As we go our separate ways, we need to think back on all the awesome experiences we have been through. The great days where we thought it would never end, have ended, but it did not just flash by. Everyday at Northern has added to our life and we can only hope the good times will keep on comin'. So now I say good-bye to you, thanks for the memories, good luck in whatever you may end up doing, and I'll remind you that we can accomplish anything. "THE WORLD IS OURS."

From the time these pictures were taken to the time the ones you see in this book many things have changed. The world as we know it began to switch overnight and, in less than 20 years, the way we look at our lives has changed dramatically and there is no sign of it ever slowing down.

For many, the final year of high school is a difficult one, not for academics but rather the people they know, the ones who have shaped their lives throughout their highschool career. Now, with college just around the corner, they are about to say goodbye to these people whose lives they have shared for 4 years and embark on a journey unlike anything they have ever experinced before. With them they will take the memories of their teenage lives, the fear of freshman year, the feeling of accomplishment when they finished timed test, homecoming, prom, and springbreak. These are times they will never forget and everyone can walk out the doors of Port Huron Northern School with a knowledge that comes not only from the education provided but from the experiences they have had.

In the final days of public school many like to reflect on the past, because, in reflection, it is the journey they have made that will be remembered in the years to come. For some the end of this era is a wave of relief, a lift on what has burdend their lives for so many years. Still this is not the end, rather a new beginning. More than a new chapter in their young lives this a whole new book, a sequel yet to be written. What will these pages contain? That is up to them to decide.

These young adults have lived through experiences that have shaped a nation and the world as a whole, the attack on the twin towers, Saddams fall from power, the death of Osama Bin Laden, and the BP oil spill. These are events that the world will never forget and these boys and girls can look back and say "I lived through that."

History is happening now and soon our students will step off the sidelines and become an influential part of our chaning world. To their children, these events will just be words on paper or a picture on a screen but to them it will be a living, breathing reality.

As these young men and women move on to bigger and better things, head to new and exotic places and meet friendly and interesting people they will move on with pride, becuae they didn't wish they were Huskies, they were.

Most Likely to Succeed

Yusef Kunji & Riley Fealko

Your heart pounds deep in your chest and you can feel the throbbing in your throat as the blood drains from your hand leaving them cool to the touch. You reach for the door grasping the frigid metal handle firmly giving it a good yank. At first, it seems your arm is more likely to give way than the door, but slowly it begins to budge. Carefully, you plant your right foot on the well-worn blue rug in front of you. Glancing around, you see no one familiar, nothing to hold onto for security sending your stomach into a downward spiral. Your palms begin to sweat as you reach for your map trying desperately to find your class before the first bell. If you ask most students this may describe that dream they had on the night before school that left them lying awake in a cold sweat; yet what it does not describe is that first day experience.

This is not to say, however, that the first year is at all easy. The initial impression of high school is often touted as one of the hardest adaptations a teenager has to make. The hallways twist around the school like a giant snake with no purpose or pattern. The classrooms cold and uninviting, but worst of all, there isn't a face you recognize amongst a sea of students. You feel lost in a current of traffic that has a mind of its own; you are swept up with the crowd and all you can do is hope they are taking you to the right place. However, these challenges soon dissipate and you begin to meld into the high school society.

We were all there at one point. We were all the underdog before we rose to the top, and such with these freshmen here. As time goes on, these kids will move through the ranks, looking down on the classes that follow them. Deep down, however, we all know what it is like but it is that unsure feeling that you must go through to understand our society. We are not trying to shut them out, rather, we are showing these young students what they need to advance, the skills they will need to have to survive in this world we call Port Huron Northern and this lesson will be passed on to the groups that follow them. Simply put we all needed to be freshmen, and at one time, we all were!

What are your goals for the Huskies this year?

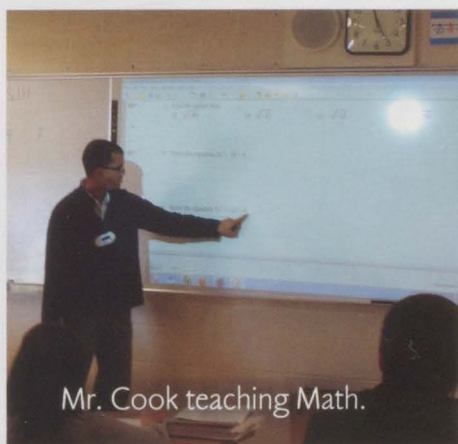

"I would like all students to be prepared for life after their time at Port Huron Northern High School. In order for this to happen, students need to experience academic and social success during their time at Northern. I want every student to feel that they are a vital part of Northern and Northern is a better place because they are here. It is important that every student knows that each and every staff member cares very much about them and we are all here to make them successful."

-Chip Mossett, Principal

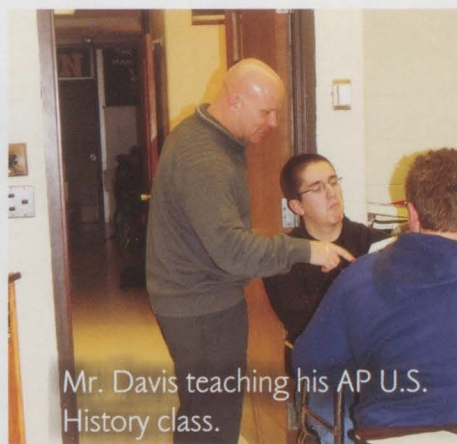

At first glance, a school is nothing but a building, a building with a narrow hallways and tight rooms housing kids during a day. Now, look closer at hallways and classrooms and look at what makes them work. What is it that breathes life into an otherwise lifeless building? What keeps this facility running day in and day out? What gives it purpose? It is the staff of PHN that gives life to all of these things. Like a hidden picture they hide in plain sight, working in the background to keep this well-oiled machine moving. At first, one may assume that this is speaking to the teachers, hours of their lives spent to enrich our experience over the next 4 years as students, but the idea of staff runs deeper than that. Janitors, lunch staffs, secretaries, they all have a part to play and without their presence this smooth sailing ship would quickly take a turn for the worst.

They don't work here for the money; they work here because it is what they love to do. They do it for us. Is life as a PHN staff member always easy? No, we as students know as well as anyone how difficult it can be, long hours that only a truly dedicated individual can commit to and an occasional lack of respect when they need it the most. Still, through all this, at the end of the day if they have improved the life of just one kid it was all worth it.

First Week Of School

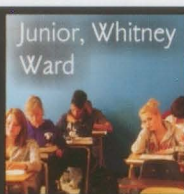

It's the first week of school, no more staying up late, and sleeping in until the afternoon, it's back to hitting the books, and getting up early for class. Welcome to high school. Welcome new freshmen and old classmates. The school spirit in the student section at football games, and pep assemblies. Reuniting with friends and teachers that you haven't seen all summer, and meeting new friends and teachers along the way. It's the first week of school. Good luck!

During grade school, and even into the college world, many tools are needed to insure your success in such a hectic environment. Pencils, pens, rulers, protractors, notebooks, calculators, the list goes on and on. However, there is one that rises above the rest; one essential element in every students tool kit; some may even say that it is the "tool kit" itself. As children's shows have portrayed for years it is the tool "loaded up with things and kinick knacks, too." It is your backpack. Like most of our belongings, this simple tool is taken for granted by many students, but think about it, what is it you grab every day before you leave the house? What is it you need to transport sensitive materials such as textbooks and folders? Without the backpack the school environment we know today would be total chaos.

We come to school to learn. This is a fact that has always been applied but is often forgotten. The kids that sit here understand this better than anyone, they are the best we have to offer; the cream of the crop; the absolute top percentage. It isn't so much that they are "smarter" than their peers, but rather, that they have adopted a mentality; a mentality to always do their best and in the end this is all we can give, we can only hope to do our best.

Obtaining this position of honor is no easy task. Grueling nights of studying and long hours spent slaving over homework all have led to this moment, and finally, it all makes sense; they all understand why they pushed themselves so far. With such opportunity laid out before them they will never have to say "I wish I was a..." because whatever they dream, they can be.

What is your break in the day? For some it is the clanging of brass instruments and sweet melodies that rise up in a wave of sound as the conductor lifts his baton. For others, it is the faint glow of a computer screen in a dimly lit room with nothing but a keyboard, the internet, and their imagination. While others, still, prefer the grueling physical activity of their favorite sport as shoes squeek on a newly polished court or mud smears up against a crisp white uniform. Whatever it is almost all students can agree that they look forward to their electives more than any other class.

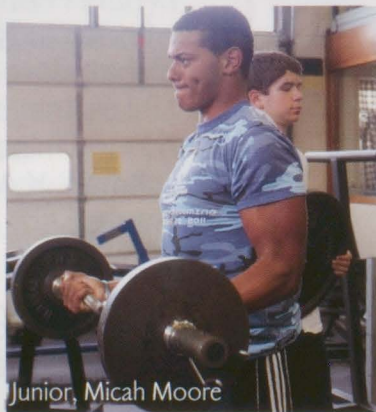

While core classes often seem to drag on for hours at a time as you slowly drift off into a light slumber, electives are always exciting, always eventful, and always different. It is this quality that will keep you saying all throughout the day...

Silence. Absolute silence. An inky black darkness stretches out for what seems like miles in front of you. The silhouettes of hundreds are just barely visible under the intense lights. A drop of sweat trickles its way down your temple, carving a path down your cheek until it splashes silently onto the wooden floor. Without warning, and seemingly without control, your voice pierces the silence, delivering a sentence you rehearsed thousands of times before. This is the life of a thespian, the heart and soul of the theater. To some, standing in front of hundreds of people is their idea of a living nightmare, but to us, the theater kids, this is what we live for. Every time a ripple of laughter spreads through the audience, every time a tear drips from the eye of a spectator, every time a thunder of applause resonates through the theater, we feel a connection; a connection that grows deeper with every passing show.

Because, for us, this isn't just a show; this is a lifestyle. an experience that is unmatched by anything we have ever done before or anything we will ever do. Those in the audience will never know what it is like, because this is a feeling unmatched by anything they have ever done or will ever do. Words cannot describe that satisfying jump of adrenaline as you take your first tentative steps towards center stage, and words cannot describe that feeling of sinking depression as the theater melts away into the horizon for the last time.

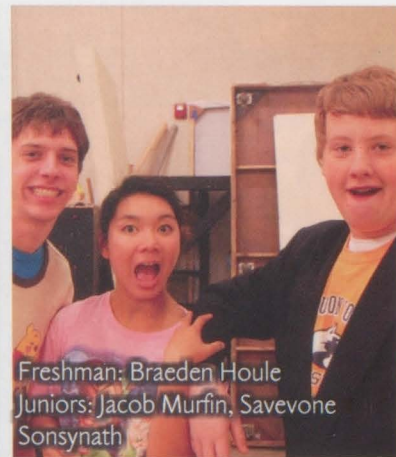

It is these feelings that keep us coming back. We come back to those familiar curtains, back to that distinctive smell, back to those blinding lights, but most importantly back to that thunder of applause. Because, despite all the hard work and all the dedication we have put in as performers, without this, it means nothing. To you, this is a minor formality, but to us, the theater kids, is what we long for. This is what makes it all worth while.

The days of a high school being "just a school" have long since passed. Today a high school is merely a hub for a variety of activities showcasing students from all walks of life with many talents. It may be the next school dance, Port Huron idol or an assembly preparing you for the big game. Whatever it is one thing is for certain, the student council was involved. As students, we show up to these school events unaware of just how much dedication other students put into them. Students like you, students who feel it is worth their time to make this place a more enjoyable environment for us all. Make no mistake, hours are spent transforming mundane classrooms and gyms into vibrant and extravagant locations where memories are formed. So, the next time you purchase a ticket to homecoming or cheer on your favorite team, remember, the time spent organizing these celebrations emulates even the most rigorous sports.

Students are always encouraged by teachers to keep up to date with domestic issues in the country and the different opinions of them. JSA gives students a unique opportunity to become a part of the political process of our country. Shaker Samman, a junior who started the club last year, says, "JSA is a student run organization dedicated to raising civic engagement in students across the country." The PHN chapter is the largest one in the Midwest. The club consists of students who like to voice their opinions about the leading social issues in the world today and those who are interested in hearing the opinions of students like themselves. JSA takes trips to Fall State, Winter Congress, and Spring State which are all conventions allowing students to talk with, debate with, and meet students from all across the country. When asked why he likes JSA, Samman replied, "I love JSA because it gives everyone a voice. Whether you know and like politics or not, as long as you come in with an open mind you'll leave happy!"

A good way for students to enjoy their time after school, is to join an after school program. There are many available for us to choose from and they cover many aspects of our lives. There is literally something for everyone. Most of us already know by now what it is we like to do, but if we need help finding the one that best suits our lifestyle, there are people out there to speak to. Just ask another student what they are doing and take it from there. Many of our students invest hours participating in the different sport teams that Northern has. Our football, basketball and volleyball teams just to name a few. Many students sign up for dance class, quota club or even learn gymnastics as a positive way to spend their free time. The important thing for us as students is to always try to improve and enrich our lives. Joining an after school program, whatever you choose, is a good way to do just that!

Mock Trial

The room falls silent; the only thing that can be heard is the thick leather soles of your shoes clicking on a wooden floor, as you pace towards a group of your peers. Things didn't go quite as expected, they never do; the other lawyer was good, snaking his way around even your best attempts at a reasonable defense, but, that has never stopped you before and today would be no different. This speech could change the course of this trial forever, or, at least, you hope so.

Believe it or not the events just described are similar to that of the mock trial team. Students acting out the roles of witnesses and lawyers; are members all coming together to form a legal trial that closely resembles that of a real world court case. How these cases are resolved is up to them. How will the evidence be used? What will the witnesses say? How will business be conducted? All of these variables are left up to the members of the team.

It is this human element that makes these mock trials come alive. The fate of this court case is in your hands. You aren't just reading out of a book memorizing lines; the events that take place in that "court room" are entirely up to you. The fate of these people rests entirely in your hands... Well, kinda.

Peer Mediation

We are a community of students here at Port Huron Northern and as in most communities, problems arise between students that sometimes escalate into public conflict resulting in disruption of close relationships between individuals and even injury. That's where the PHN Peer Mediators come in, helping to preserve the peace of our school.

The Peer Mediators are vital to everyone's normal school day because without them, there would be widespread chaos throughout the school with aggressive behavior among students going on unchecked. Peer Mediators are what make the normal days at our great school possible. So thank you Peer Mediators for helping create a great community of students and for being one of the best examples of what makes our school great.

There are many different clubs and organizations here at Port Huron Northern, but out of all of them.... how many can claim they are saving the world? The enviornment warriors of Northern's tree club help save the world every week, not like superheroes like superman but by the sacrificing their time to help the world become a better place.

Many people may think that the effects of tree club's hard work are not as widespread as other organizations such as NHS. These people are wrong. The effects of tree club can be seen all around us in our communities as well as our schools. These young men and women sacrifice thier own time after school to broaden the horizon of the community in their strives toward enviromental protection and preservation.

The contributions of the tree club can be felt with everything you do, from the recycled paper you write on to the cleaner air you inhale each day, it has all been affected by Tree club.

It is because of all of the actions in Tree club, which can be felt running deep through the veins of Port Huron Northern, that many people here, myself included, wish the same thing...

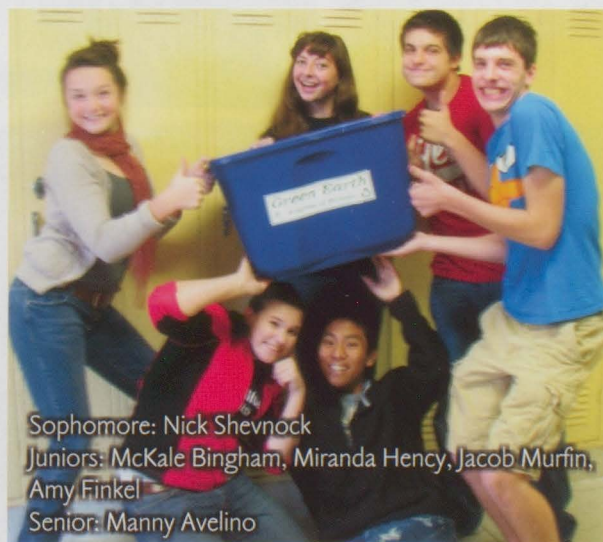

I wish I could save the world.

The ski club is a club that ski's. Funny how that works, really. They don't have a ball to throw around, or a field to run across; all they have is a bit of plastic, two sword looking things and a mountin. Being on ski club takes hard work, dedication, training, and most importantly... snow. (Remeber the No-Snow winter of 2012?) What makes the ski club so impressive isn't necessarily their ability to ski, but their ability to do so without this essential element (have you been around a window lately?) So the next time you see a member of the ski club in the hallway or at the mall, smile, and give them a pat on the back and ask them how it is to ski in shorts.

Husky Link

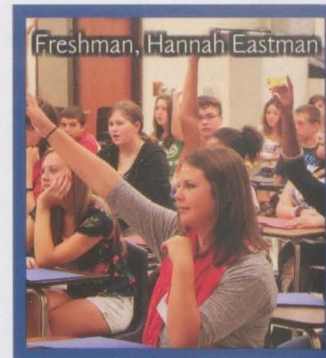

During one special day in August 2011 Freshman walk the halls of PHN before school starts. With the help of upperclassmen they learn the layout of the building, find their classes and decide what they would like to take. Seniors such as Taylor Sweeny help the freshmen get to know where they will be going and just how awesome Port Huron Northern can be. They were shown an assembly, which Monique Sanchez said "helped her know what to expect out of a real one." They learned how those tricky locker combinations work and even recieved some hotdogs made by Assitant Princple, Mr. Brock himself. "The maps that we have helped me a lot to find my classes" said Robert Bayliss. Daryn Taylor agreed " I found my classes easily". The lunch they had was held in the courtyard where they could find thier friends and eat together.

They saw the different clubs, sports, and groups they could join once the school year started. Jenna Brettsneider and othe upperclassmen led them around and taught them all about our wonderful school. They also got a talk from a Sherrif from Port Huron Police Department about what not to do while attending Northern because you dont want to end up in one of his cells. Overall the fresman class would agree that Husky Link is a lifesaver and made that first week at PHN that much easier.

There they stand, tried, sweaty, and intensely focused communication their thoughts, their feelings solely by body language. Like a well oiled machine they anticipate the return of the ball that they had just volleyed to their adversaries. The time slows as the ball soars through the air, a sliver of light crescents it as it begins to fall. A quick glance to the girl to the right makes it apparent that this one is hers and the team steps back. Moving forward she smacks the ball full on in the face which sends it hurdling back over the net. The other team scrambles to react, but their efforts are met only with failure as the ball gently touches down on the polished wood floor. A thunderous sound of cheering gently erupts for the on looking patrons, signaling, signaling that the PHN volleyball team, has once again, bested their opponents.

For the volleyball team, action like this almost as natural as breathing. They spend long hours honing their skills and it is this grueling practice schedule that keeps them at the top of their game. These ladies are not afraid to do the hard work, but only if it culminates in an inevitable victory. After witnessing the dedication and hard work that is put forth by these young women you are left with one unshakable thought, I wish I was on the volleyball team.

Time is slowed, all eyes are focusing on you. The leather ball is clutched tightly in the crutch of your arm as you bound across the field gaining momentum, the spines of your cleats puncture the soft mud leaving pin sized holes in your wake. A roar of applause splashes over you like a tidal wave as you slow to a jog. The loudspeakers boom with the words you have been yearning for all this time "Touchdown Huskies" which sends another rumble of applause washing over you. The only ones more ecstatic than the dedicated fans is your team who swarms you on your way back to the sidelines.

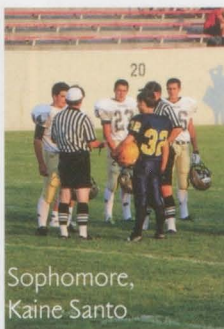

Picture this and you start to have an idea of what our football teams experience every week. The thrill of the game, that adrenaline that keeps them going late into the night and that drives them towards being not just good, but great.

This adrenaline isn't just a side effect of the game, it is the very essence of the game itself. It's as critical as the uniform or the ball. It's what keeps them coming back; the thrill of the game.

Picture a cool fall day. A faint breeze whistles through the trees as the runners take their positions. You can see the glare of intense focus hidden behind glossy eyes. The young ladies that stand here have one goal, to win. Their entire conscious mind is focused on this single goal. A sharp crack breaks the stillness in the air sending the ladies blotting down the track. Rubber soles bounce lively along the path leaving only a faint pitter patter of footsteps in their wake. Finally the end is in sight. With every muscle in their body aching, gasping for air they muster what little strength they have left pushing themselves farther than they ever thought possible. At last they bound over the well-worn white line marking the finish of the race leaving nothing but a faint cloud of dust in their wake. While the fun is in the race the reward is in the finish where you break that intense focus to glance at the people in front of you and realize there isn't anyone.

Many people go to school events at Port Huron Northern like basketball games, pep assemblies, and football games. While people come for the games, they stay because of another reason. Some think they are a side show, a distraction to tide people over in between plays or during halftime... these people are wrong. Northern cheerleaders, help to give our students the school spirit needed to cheer our teams to victory. They provide energy, the fires of determination, that both the students in the crowd, and the team as a whole, us to pump themselves up to do their very best.

In order to create the energy that they supply at the games, they must go through a rigorous and time consuming practice schedule. They put in countless hours honoring their skills and mastering routines, while performing them in perfect synchronization. All of this culminating in stylish performances consisting of flips, cartwheels, and towers that help our team climb to victory.

Although most people think that being victorious in a basketball or football game is the team's victory, it is truly the cheerleader's. It is because of this that many other students here at Port Huron Northern wish the same thing.

I wish I was a cheerleader.

Wind rushes through the riders hair as the first barrel approaches. Pulling hard on the thin leather straps that serve as the bond between man and beast he steers his compaion around the obstruction and turns to face their next challenge. Clad in flannel shirts and ankle high boots they majestically canter around upon their mounts through the intricate array of obstacles. The sound of hooves softly striking the dirt give this fast paced and instense sport a rather tranquil feeling.

Most sports are played with human teammates but this sport is far different. Although the young men and women are on a team, when they parade out onto the field it's their mighty steeds they depend on, not their fellow man. It is these creatures that they will rely on to carry them from one challenge to the next.

These young men and women are part of the PHN Equestrian team and although they are not as well recognized as other sports such as football or tennis, they are still a critical part, and an important addition to the sports lineup at Northern. When you join the equestrian team you are taking part in an activity that has spanned hundreds of generations for thousands of years. The art of horseback riding is one that is often obscured by modern transportation but these students plan on keeping it alive so that later generations can experience it as well.

In Loving Memory of
Alicia Nicole Morgan

February 18, 1994 to June 30, 2011

Angel

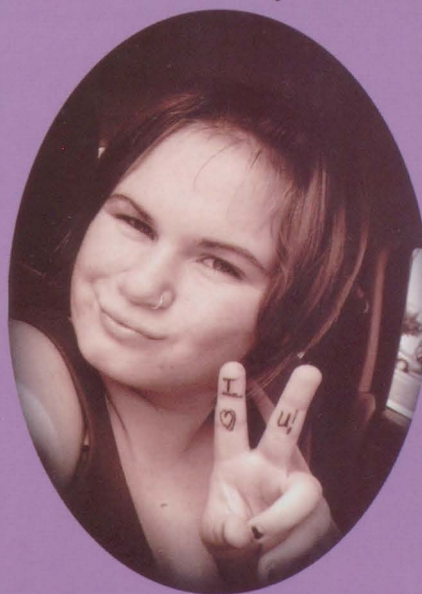

Tear drops, slow and steady, the pain so real and true.
God took another angel, and that angel, dear, was you.
Angel wings, upon the clouds, your body softly sleeps,
Hush now little princess, no more tears you have to weep.

Memories and little prayers, we all are mourning you,
But we'll celebrate the life you led; we will never forget you.

I know God will look after you, now you are truly alive,
Your spirit soars beyond the moon, your legacy will survive.
You're beautiful, you're endless, now stretch your wings and fly,
We love you so, I love you so, but now we say goodbye.

Close your pretty eyes, no more tears; just go and rest,
Let your soul lie peacefully, we know you did your best.
It was your time, so as we cry, go forward that extra mile,
You did what you were sent to do, you made everybody smile

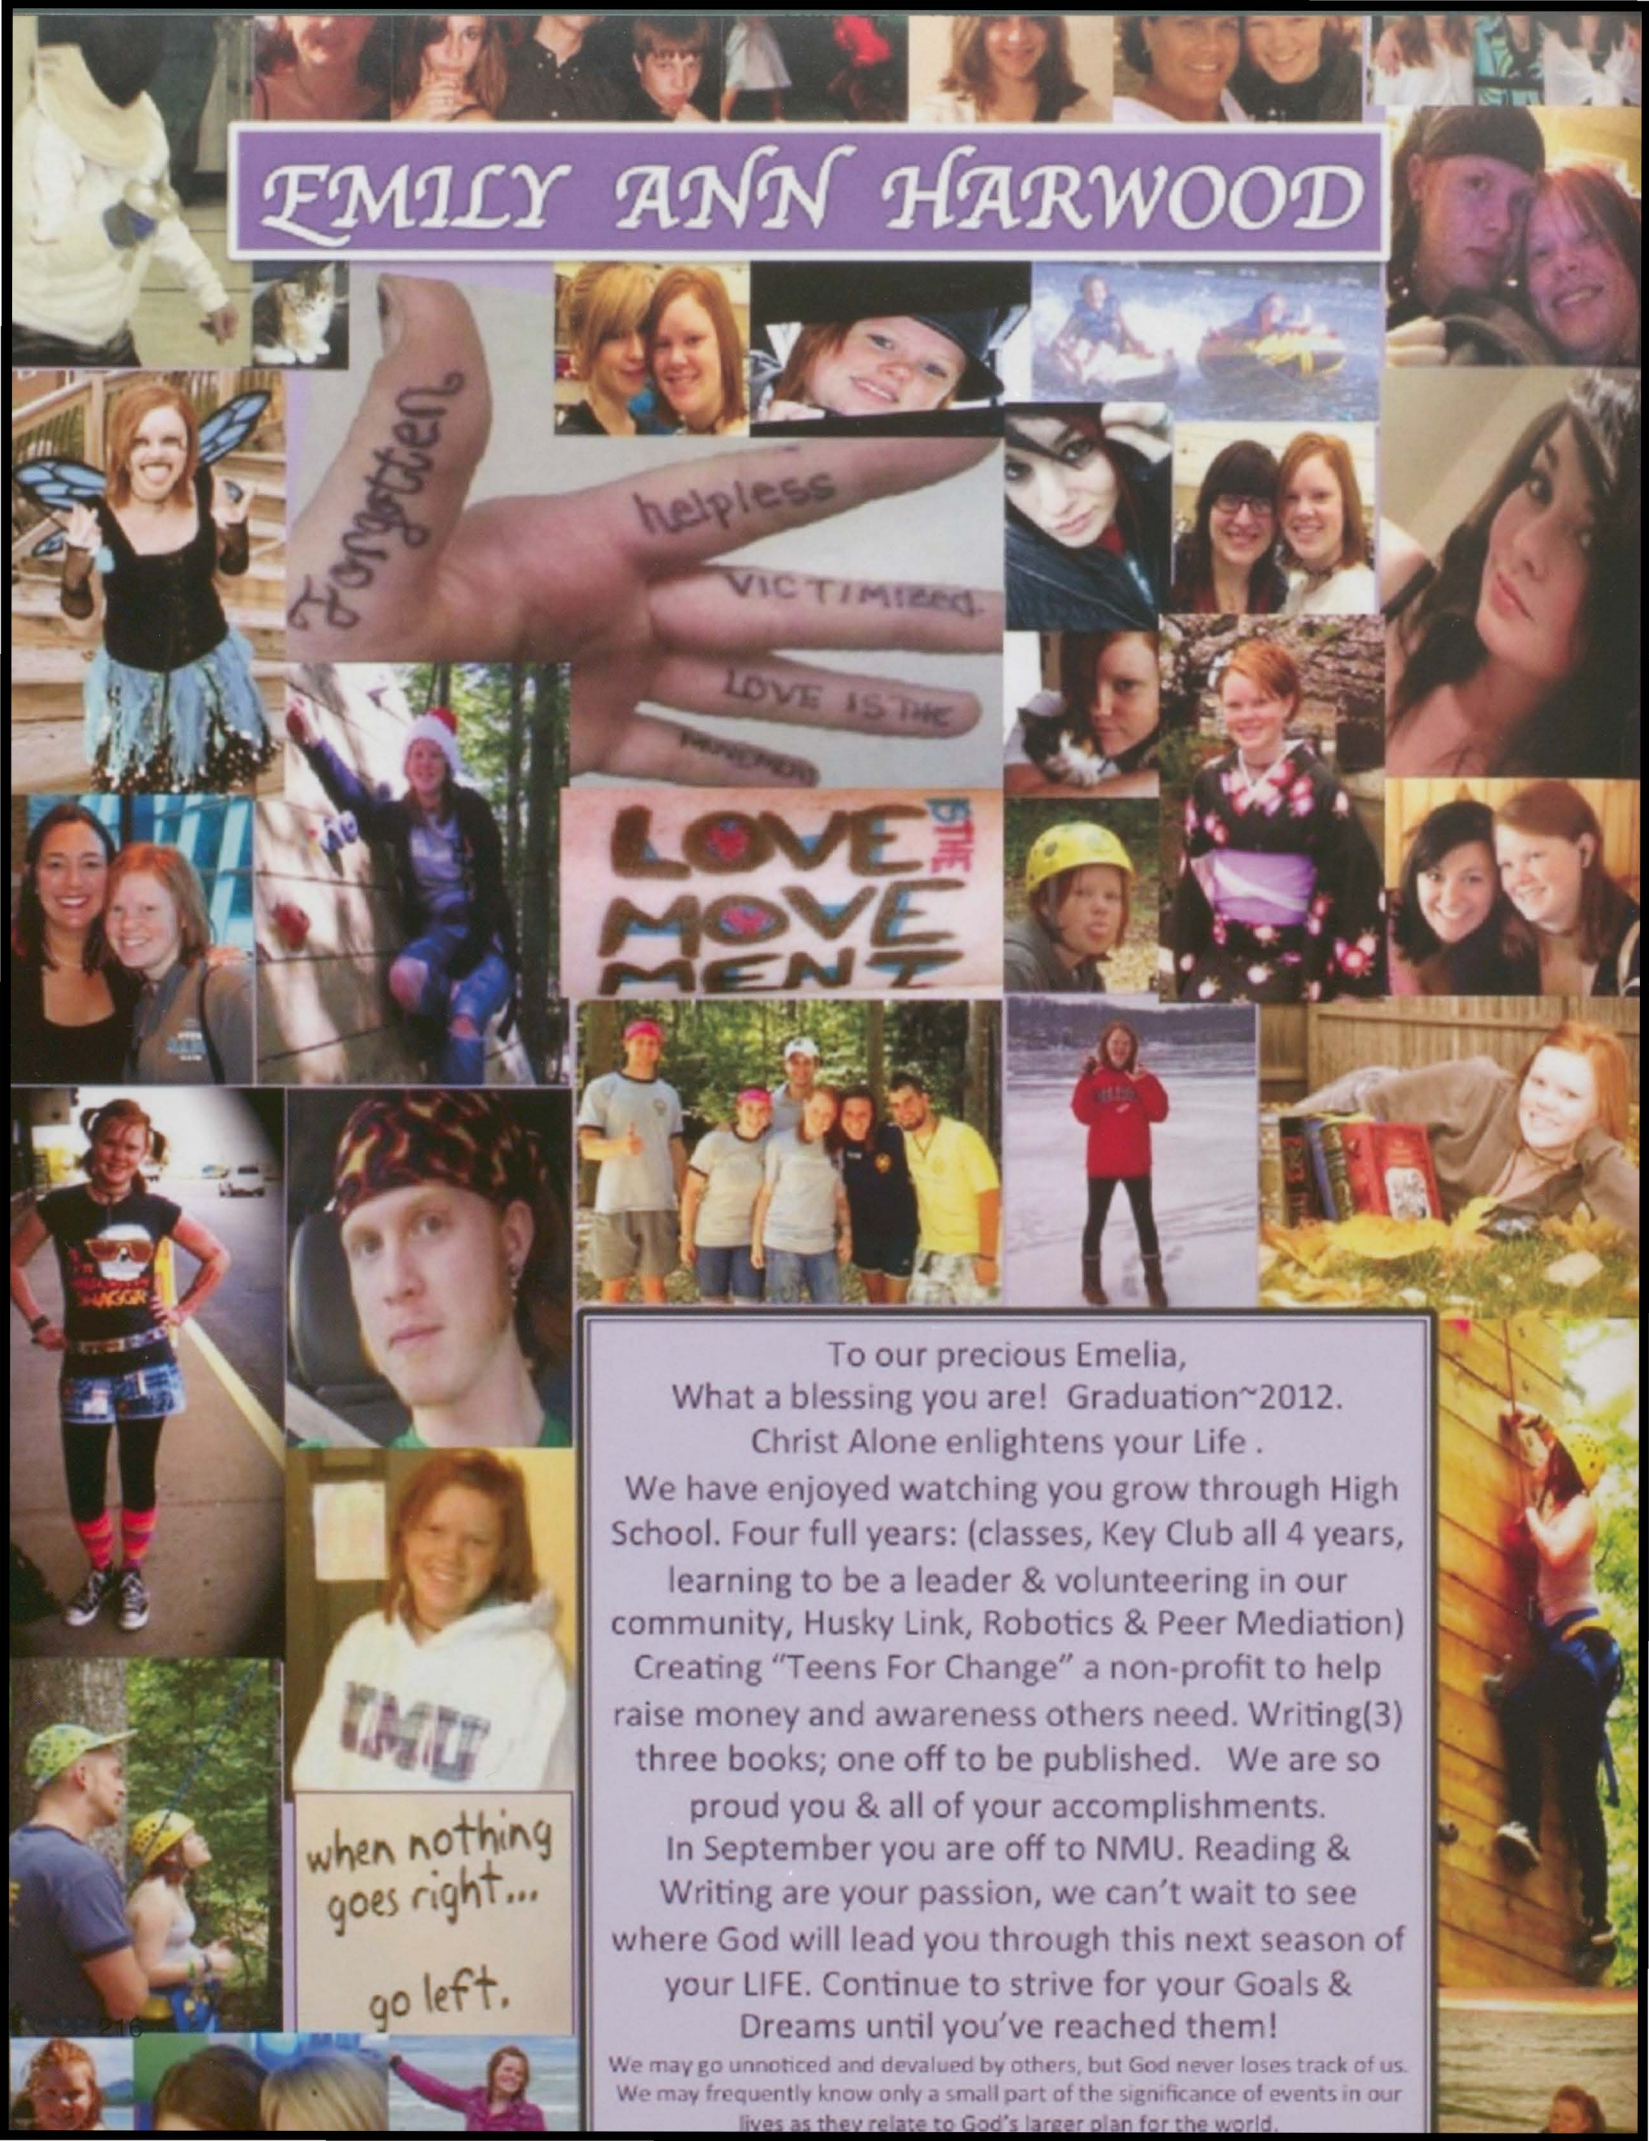

By Christelle Dardagos

No farewell words were spoken,
No time to say goodbye.
You were gone before we knew it,
only God can tell us why.
